

3 Apr 2020: Global logistics operations COVID-19 update

The coronavirus COVID-19 is affecting 204 countries and territories around the world. As of today, the WHO reported 1,030,633 confirmed cases of the COVID-19 virus worldwide of which 756,401 are active. Supply chain is essential and critical to support the infrastructure for our communities. Government agencies and health organizations around the world have set guidelines which are changing dynamically to align to the situation as it evolves. These guidelines are being followed. The challenges supply chains are facing in this environment are changing daily. We are adapting solutions to mitigate the impact of these changes to supply chain operations. Below are updates on operations and carriers regarding COVID-19 impacts. The new updates for today are highlighted yellow.

Summary

In general, the ability to move goods is reduced compared to what you would expect to see in pre-COVID-19 times. The challenges we are facing include reduction of number of available aircraft, vessels and trucks; increased border crossing lead-times in several countries; shortages of ocean containers; cost increases for all modes of transit. These challenges are impacting geographies and lanes causing reduced operations at several air/seaports in different countries. Please note that until operations return to normal freight quotes may change without notice. To avoid changes, advanced bookings are recommended.

The International Federation of Freight Forwarders Associations (FIATA) has urged governments to act to ensure that ports remain open to allow the freight and logistics sector to help tackle the Covid-19 crisis. FIATA noted that although announcements were already being made about what may be “the largest drop in the volume of shipments in living memory”, international trade and logistics, although severely affected by the international Covid-19 corridors by air, sea and land, “continues to function” but not at pre-DOVID-19 levels.

Ocean Operations

- As the World's Borders Close, ocean carriers have suspended crew changes for a minimum of one month.
- Maersk containership, Gjertrud Maersk crew members have tested positive for COVID-19 in China. No COVID-19 found on CMA CGM Marco Polo according to CMA-CGM.
- The world’s biggest shipowner and seafarer bodies are calling for seafarers to be exempt from national travel bans, while the head of the International Maritime Organization has called for pragmatism in dealing with crew changeovers.
- Container lines on brink of cashflow crunch. Global carriers are still being paid for freight shipped from Asia before China shut down factories, but now face a hole in their finances as the impact of blanked sailings and reduced volumes starts to be felt.
- The recovery in containerized exports from China may prove short-lived as retailers in North America and Europe respond to a slump in consumer spending, with serious consequences for container lines that had been hoping for a return to relative normality during the summer.

Middle East/India Sub/Africa:

- Bangladesh - All government and private offices and courts will remain closed until April 4. Chittagong port authority suspended crew changes for 8 weeks from March 21. If crew change is unavoidable, a 14 days self-quarantine is required. All foreign ships arriving Chattogram port will be quarantined for 16 days.
- Sri Lanka - under curfew until further notice. Ports are operating normal hours.
- Kuwait - Container terminals are operating with normal hours.
 - All marine agencies are required to provide a copy of their logbook for the past 30 working days.
 - Effective March 23, Kuwait and Saudi borders are restricted to move essential commodities such as food and medical supplies only. Boarder authorities in KSA recommending other commodities to move by Sea or Air.
 - Borders of Maritime placed restrictions or are closed for entry of vessels that visited the most affected countries.
- Iraq - Ports are operating normal hours. Marine / Pilots available for the moment and working. Other areas are working with limited staff. All the land borders to / from Iraq closed currently.
- India - Officials announced 21days lockdown until April 14 for the entire country.
 - Inbound containers have been unloaded, but are being kept in the port area, port to CFS and CFS to port operations may resume on April 1.

- Limited number of officers are available in Customs CFS, ICDS and Ports.
- All ports and CFSs in most locations are functional and productivity is normal, berthing of some vessels is getting delayed due to quarantine requirements of Port Health Office. We are expecting to see more restrictions applied due to the new mandatory lockdown.
- So far, no blank sailing has been announced by carriers. There is a delay in new booking release, MBL release and Import DO Issuance
- Space availability from India Sub and Middle East to Asia is challenging. There has been a significant increase in rates.
- Egypt – due to the implementation of a nighttime curfew (see Egypt news), please be aware that such force majeure will interrupt operations at Port Alexandria
- Nigeria - only cargo vessels that have been traveling for more than 14 days be allowed to dock in ports. Port wait time for vessels have increased recently.

United States:

- Ocean carriers are now making announcements on special arrangements for demurrage and detention in case of terminal closure, any restrictions or changes of earliest return date for export. Any third-party expense such as chassis, storage fees, etc. is not covered by ocean carrier.
- US Terminals slow down operations as imports fall away. While some terminals are working normal hours, others are operating under reduced hours or closed 1-2 days during week.
- Equipment availability is still challenging especially in some inland locations.
- Advanced bookings are still recommended for all trade lanes.
- Due to low import volume exporters have been dealing scarcity of empty containers for weeks.
- In summary, ocean shipments to and from the US are still moving. Ports are being asked to remain open in support of the supply chains of Pharmaceuticals and food stuffs. Ocean carriers are still trying to provide weekly sailings in order to keep these supply chains open, however they are indicating that they may have to phase vessels out of rotation due to substantial operational losses incurred on near empty, or empty sailings over the past several weeks.
- GRI from U.S. is expected to go into effect on April 01st from ports from inland origins due to limited equipment supply.
- Space availability is still an issue.
- Free time requests are starting to become restricted globally. Existing free times are being honored so far.
- Ocean carriers are asking all their customers to use their available online tools when possible before contacting them via phone or email.
- Ocean carriers in the USA are asking for payments to be made electronically instead of checks.
- Ports are not accepting physical documents including hazmat declaration. All documents must be submitted electronically.

Asia/Oceania:

- China now has 14 days minimum travel restrictions for ships and crews coming from worst-hit countries
- Shanghai has begun to allow crew changes as China increases efforts to relieve seafarers stranded on ships due to the coronavirus outbreak.
- Australian ports also require any inbound vessel to travel at minimum of 14 days. Maritime Safety Queensland has eased its entry restrictions to allow all vessels to call the port of Brisbane except those from China and South Korea.
- Space remains tight as additional void sailings are announced by ocean carriers.
- Far East to North America trade will experience 24 blank sailings by the 3 alliances between week 14 and 18.

Total of 82 blank sailings from Asia to US West Coast from early February to early April. New York /New Jersey will experience 20 blank sailings on March and April. Blank sailings are expected to decrease by end of April.

- Far East to Europe trade will experience 47 blank sailing by major ocean carriers between week 14 and 23.
- TPEB rates increased on March 15. Additional GRI are expected to go into effect on April 01st. There has been an increase in spot rates.
- Wuhan operations is still closed. Expected return date is unknown at this time.
- Advanced bookings are still recommended for all trade lanes.
- Additional fees are expected to apply by ocean carriers into and out of China.
- Ocean carriers are starting to cancel additional reefer surcharge in China. Carriers previously announced an additional surcharge for all reefer containers due to heavy congestion and lack of plugs.
- Philippines is under enhanced community quarantine until April 13. Ports are reportedly fully operational but with skeleton crew. Restrictions are being applied to truckers as they need to get ID from government.
- Malaysia has extended the MCO (movement control order) until April 14. No foreign nationals allowed. No crew change allowed regardless of nationality at any Malaysian port unless medical emergency. If such emergency arises the evacuation must be coordinated with the local port health officer. If said evacuation places the vessel at risk to under manning and a need to add a crew only a Malaysia crew can go aboard.
- Manila port in Philippines is experiencing space issue in the CY. The recommendation is to either re-route cargo to a different port or arrange to pick up inbound containers as soon as possible. Additional cost may apply in an event that port needs to make any special arrangement such as temporary storage, diversion or moving cargo to a different location. Ocean Carriers announced a port congestion surcharge for reefer containers.
- Singapore eases up on crew change restrictions under certain circumstances. Shipowners and ship agencies may submit their requests to the MPA for consideration.

Canada:

- Ports and offices are working normal hours.
- There are slight delays in Intermodal (rail) services due to backlog from February Blockades/shutdown. The situation is being monitored closely.
- Equipment availability is not a concern currently.
- Drayage and trucking operations is running smoothly.

Europe:

- The European Commission has formalized its decision to extend the Consortia Block Exemption Regulation for four years. But forwarder representatives say shippers' voices have been ignored. "With global shippers focused on keeping the world trading as best they can, the unqualified extension of the CBER until 2024 will be a surprise and feel as if the commission has taken advantage of the coronavirus crisis to push through an unpopular and contested decision," said Global Shipper's Forum (GSF) secretary-general James Hookham.
 - Space and equipment shortages are being reported in all locations.
 - Factories are slower in production.
 - Atlantic trade is still relatively stable.
- Rate increased announced for export to North America and Mexico.

In Italy, Genoa port terminal announced to reduce number of staff and operations all depending on volume. Some carriers announced to move their fleet to La Spezia port for the time being. Trucking costs are expected to increase also.

- Other Italian ports are exempted from lockdown and remain operational.
- Ports in Spain are working with limited hours but fully operational.
- There is no report of any port closure now.
- Trucking shortages are being reported in and out of effected countries.
- There is a mandatory 14 days quarantine implemented in some countries for truckers coming from Italy.
- Ocean Network Express (ONE) have announced some cancellations to their (Asia – North Europe Services) and (Asia – Mediterranean Services)

Latin America:

- Ports and operations are running smoothly with normal hours.
- Due to transitioning of market rate increase in expected for service to Asia in coming weeks.
- Service to US and Europe is running smoothly with no significant issue. Most vessels are reportedly moving full.

Charter Operations and Aircraft Availability

- Capacity is available for charters globally, contact us for current rates and availability.
- We have seen opportunities for part charters (20 tons and up) recently, but not seen regularly. If you have an opportunity send us the details and we can work on current, part charter capacity and pricing.
- Charter prices are based on current availability and that could change rapidly. Capacity and rates have been fluctuating a lot over the past few days.
- We must have a signed charter authorization from our client before we can sign the charter contract with the provider. Make sure you have someone standing by to sign agreements, capacity and rates change quickly.
- On all charters, funds must be received from our client prior to wheels up.

Ground Transportation Operations

- Rates continued to rise last week for van and reefer equipment, due to retail inventory replenishment, but declining load-to-truck ratios signal that rates are likely to fall this week. The Southeast may remain strong, however, as ratios are still rising on northbound lanes from that region. This is most likely being driven by an uptick in produceloads.
- Most carriers are forecasting a decrease in demand during April.
- Spot activity in March was up significantly from February of this year and March of last year. However, there was significant drop in load to truck ratio during the last week of March.
